U. S. ships reported driven off

TOKYO (UPI)—North Korea said the United States sent armed ships and planes into North Korean waters today and that they were driven off by the North Korean navy. In Washington a Pentagon spokesman said no American forces were involved.

In the past Pyongyang Radio has accused the United States of "sending" South Korean naval units into North Korean waters. The Pentagon spokesman said if South Korean forces were involved in the reported incident it could not comment.

"There were no U.S. forces involved in any such incident," the Pentagon said. The spokesman added that the North Korean reports were "hogwash."

The official North Korean Central News Agency said planes dispatched by the Americans fired on a Korean patrol craft. It made no claim to have sunk any ships but said the North Koreans "dealt a decisive counterblow at the intruders, completely shattering the enemy's provocative scheme."

The broadcast monitored in Tokyo said the United States "infiltrated a number of armed ships including a spy ship into the coastal waters of our side, east of Changjon Port on the East Sea from around 7 a.m. on the morning of December 26."

"When their sinister design was exposed it invited a selfdefensive counterblow from our naval ships on patrol duty at the spot."

"The U.S. imperialist aggressor forces even sent their Air Force to the spot and committed a grave provocation firing over 50 rounds of large caliber shells toward our patrol craft on the sea north of the extension of the (38th parallel) demarcation line."

Weather

Variable cloudiness today and Sunday with occasional showery periods. Slightly cooler Sunday. Highs today and Sunday 58 to 64. Lows tonight 35 to 42.

Sunday tides
High tides of 6.3 feet at 7:44 a.m. and 3.6 feet at 9:50 p.m. Low tides of 2.4 feet at 1:20 a.m. and minus 0.9 feet at 3:14 p.m.

Monday tides
High tides of 6.8 feet at 9:08 a.m. and 3.8 feet at 11:08 p.m. Low tides of 2.3 feet at 1:44 a.m. and minus 1.4 feet at 4:32 p.m.

Christian pilgrims protected by guns

JERUSALEM (UPI)—For the fourth consecutive year Christian pilgrims from all over the world celebrated Christmas in Bethlehem under the protecting guns of the Jewish state.

And for the first time since Israel took Christ's birthplace from Jordan in the 1967 Middle East War, they had tangible proof those stringent precautions were necessary. Israeli massed more than 1,000 crack troops and police to watch over Christmas pilgrims and celebrations in Bethlehem.

Despite their presence Arab guerrillas threw a grenade at an Israeli border police patrol on the outskirts of this little Judean hilltop Arab town, an hour before midnight mass.

The attack inflicted neither casualties nor damage. Few of the Bomb explodes near Turkish minister; none injured

ISTANBUL (UPI)—A bomb exploded today within three yards of a black limousine carrying Power Minister Nahit Mentese, police said. He was not injured.

Police said the attackers apparently thought Turkish Premier Suleyman Demirel was in the limousine, which was at the head of an informal motorcade passing Istanbul's dissent-ridden technical university campus.

"Demirel's car was initially at the head of the motorcade but we changed its route in order to avoid the campus, where students might have caused trouble," Istanbul's political security chief, Ilgaz Aykutlu, said.

"Minister of Power Nahit Mentese was in the attacked car," the explosive device, apparently homemade, caused no damage.

Demirel was returning to his hotel after a meeting with Istanbul's governor. Several other government officials from Ankara attended the session.

Shortly before the bomb incident police sources said leftist students at the university decided to boycott classes for three days in protest against the death of a leftist student Friday when rightwing student commandos opened pistol fire against leftists on the Ankara University campus.

2,000 Christian pilgrims attending the festivities in Manger Square and the pontifical high mass in the Basilica of the Nativity were even aware a grenade had been thrown.

It marked the first time in four years that Arab guerrillas have made good their threats that Christmas services in the birthplace of the Prince of Peace are not immune from attack.

Another guerrilla-mounted grenade attack shattered the Holy Land Christmas peace several hours later.

It occurred in Ramallah, 15 miles north of Bethlehem and wounded three Israeli soldiers and a local Arab.

Apart from those two incidents and minor trouble in the occupied Gaza Strip there was quiet along Israel's ceasefire lines with the Arabs during Christmas.

The sources said police arrested 69 students and were hunting the "commando" group of five or six students who sprayed pistol bullets into a group of left-wing rivals in front of the school of sciences at the university.

Close bombing raids in Cambodia fighting

PHNOM PENH (UPI)—Cambodian air force planes bombed Communist targets so close to Phnom Penh today that windows rattled in the capital. Heavy fighting also was reported at Kompong Cham, Cambodia's third largest city 50 miles northeast of Phnom Penh.

No major fighting was reported in South Vietn, but the U.S. Command in Saigon reported 81 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese violations of the U.S. and South Vietnamese 24-hour Christmas cease-fire. A 72-hour truce declared by the Communists expires at 1 a.m. Sunday (noon EST Saturday).

Field dispatches from the Kompong Cham area said heavy fighting raged for an hour west of the city today with two South Vietnamese airborne forces carrying out a sweep near Prey Totung, 45 miles northeast of Phnom Penh. A third South Vietnamese force provided artillery support.

National outcry over Russian death decree in hijacking case

JERUSALEM (UPI)—President Zalman Shazar called today on all Jews and all men of conscience the world over to protest against the death sentences imposed in the Leningrad plane hijack trial "for the Jews of the Soviet Union cannot raise their voices."

The national outcry against the verdicts came as Moscow dispatches reported the two Jews sentenced to death and the nine others including Jews and Russians sentenced to jail terms had appealed the sentences to the Supreme Court of the Russian Federation.

Shazar renewed the demand made by Premier Golda Meir and the Knesset (Parliament) Friday that the Leningrad death sentences be revoked and that the Leningrad Jews—and all Soviet Jews who so desire—be allowed to emigrate to Israel.

Special prayers for the Leningrad Jews and all Jews living in Russia were said in synagogues throughout Israel today, the Jewish sabbath. Because it was the sabbath the nationwide protest rallies and marches were not held today.

Israel ready for peace talks

By United Press International
Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban said Friday in Tel Aviv Israel could no longer delay its return to the Middle East peace talks under United Nations mediator Gunnar V. Jarring.

His statement coincided with reports the Israeli cabinet would meet on Monday to decide whether to rejoin the talks it quit Sept. 6 in protest over Egyptian violations of the Aug. 7 cease-fire.

"The hour of decision is close at hand," Eban said at the Tel Aviv Press Club. "There exists no argument now which can justify a delay."

"One should not look at the rosy aspect of rejoining the peace talks but rather consider the grim consequences of a refusal to do so."

Political sources in Tel Aviv said the delay in making its decision was designed to give the National Religious Party a chance to formulate its position on Israel's return to the peace table. The party is a major partner in Premier Golda Meir's cabinet.

Christmas holiday death toll rises

By United Press International
The Christmas holiday traffic death toll continued to mount today but the National Safety Council said it appeared its estimate of 550 to 650 highway casualties might be too high.

Last year, 603 persons died during the weekend. This year's holiday period began at 6 p.m., local time, Thursday and runs until midnight Sunday.

A United Press International count at 10 a.m. EST showed 213 persons had been killed in traffic accidents since the holiday period began.

A breakdown of accidental deaths:
Traffic 213
Fires 14
Planes 0
Miscellaneous 5
Total 232

California led the states with 25 traffic deaths.

In some of the holiday weekend's worst accidents, five persons died in a head-on collision on California 78 near Brawley; a woman and her two daughters were killed when their pickup truck was hit by a train near Tempe, Ariz.

Glimpses

Fireplaces spewing smoke over city.

Trash bins filled with tinsel and gay wrapping paper.

New bicycles throughout community.

But what shaped up as the biggest demonstration so far was scheduled after the sabbath's end this evening in the huge Square of the Kings of Israel in front of Tel Aviv's modernistic glass and concrete city hall. Mrs. Meir herself planned to address the throng.

Israel got support from two unexpected quarters—the Paris Communist newspaper L'Humanite and the British Communist party appealed for leniency in the Leningrad trial. L'Humanite said the verdict would "provoke legitimate emotion" among even the friends of Russia.

There were demonstrations against the verdict in Washington, New York, London, Rome and Tel

Aviv. In Paris the window of the Soviet tourist office was smashed by a paving stone and French government officials said France would intervene.

Diplomatic observers in Moscow expressed belief that the death sentences would be commuted unless the public outcry abroad hardens the attitude of the highest Soviet officials. The news agency Tass today condemned what it called "a new fit of anti-Soviet hysteria whipped up by Zionist circles...and masterminded by Israel."

Mrs. Meir, dressed in mourning black, told the Knesset Friday, "There is only a short time left, a few days, before the execution of the judgment."

Sentenced hijackers appeal to higher court

MOSCOW (UPI) — Eleven Jews and Russians sentenced to death or imprisonment by a Leningrad court this week for attempting to hijack an aircraft have appealed their sentences to the Supreme Court of the Russian Federation, Leningrad sources said.

The report could not be officially confirmed. Soviet authorities remained silent on the subject.

The prisoners were reported to have tried to escape from the Soviet Union to emigrate to Israel.

Two of the prisoners, former Air Force Major Mark Dymshits and Eduard Kuznetsov were sentenced to death. Nine others drew terms of four to 15 years.

Should the Supreme Court of the RSFSR uphold the judgment of the Leningrad city court, the prisoners may appeal to the Supreme court of the USSR.

If the highest court of the land rejects the appeal, the prisoners will have one more recourse—appeal to the presidium of the Supreme Soviet (the chief executive) for clemency.

Pending exhaustion of all these legal remedies the prisoners will remain in Leningrad, under the jurisdiction of the local procuracy (Attorney generals office).

There is no danger of the immediate execution of the death sentences, Leningrad sources said.

The Soviets today acknowledged for the first time that the trial has aroused passions abroad among those who see it as an illustration of the plight of Soviet Jews, who are not free to emigrate abroad.

"This unbridled anti-Soviet campaign by Zionist organizations is actually masterminded by Israel," the official Tass news agency said.

"Making speeches seemingly in defense of the convicted, who include several persons of Jewish nationality, Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir actually tries to divert public attention from the sinister doings of the Israeli military in the Middle East," Tass said.

"The Soviet court tried the defendants in Leningrad not for their nationality but for their crime—which expressed itself in the creation of a criminal group, preparations for a bandit hijacking of a plane and flight on it abroad with the purpose of betraying the country, and attempting to commit this hostile act by means danger to the lives of pilots."

Christmas eve crash kills Lompoc woman on Hwy. 1

A Lompoc woman was fatally injured in a one car accident on Route 1 near Jalama Road on Christmas Eve, according to the California Highway Patrol.

Four other persons have been injured in three other accidents since the start of the holiday season at noon Thursday.

Teddy Jean Jordan, 26, 403½ North M Street, was killed Thursday night when her car went out of control and rolled over on Route 1 just north of Jalama Road, the CHP said.

Officers said the Jordan woman was driving south on Route 1 when she apparently tried to pass another car on a curve. The Jordan vehicle went out of control, ran off the east side of the road, rolled over and came back onto the roadway. The driver was ejected from the car.

The highway patrol listed her dead on arrival at the Lompoc Hospital. Funeral arrangements are pending at McPeeks Family Mortuary.

Mrs. Edith Robinson suffered minor injuries late last night when the car in which she was a passenger went out of control and collided with a mobile home at 816 North O Street, Space 42, according to the Lompoc police.

Police said Ronnie Howard Robinson, 24, 816 North O Street, Space 66, the driver of the vehicle, was arrested on felony drunk driving. Robinson apparently was pulling into the driveway of the trailer court at 816 North O when he lost control of his car and ran into a mobile home belonging to Joseph Sessions, officers said. Sessions was not injured.

Mrs. Robinson was treated and released at the Lompoc Hospital.

In another Christmas Day accident Terrance Mullan, 17, 1115 Cottonwood Vandenberg AFB, received minor injuries when the motorcycle he was riding collided with a pickup truck being driven by Loren Goodrick, 32, 565 Mars, at an alley intersection.

Lompoc police said Mullan was traveling east in the alley parallel with 700 W. Ocean and Goodrick was traveling south in the alley parallel with 100 North O when they collided in the intersection in the middle of the block.

Mullan was treated and released from the Vandenberg AFB hospital with a sprained ankle, police reported.

Two persons were injured in another accident involving a motorcycle on Christmas Eve. Injured were the driver of the motorcycle, Paul Roberts, and his passenger, Jeffery Jones, 16, 1536 Sheffield Drive.

Jones was treated and released by the Lompoc Hospital. The age, address and extent of injuries to Roberts were not available. Police said Roberts was taken to the Vandenberg AFB Hospital.

Police reported the motorcycle driven by Roberts collided with the rear of a car being driven by James Tommy, 32, 512 South U Street. Both vehicles were traveling west in the 600 block of E. Ocean.

Tommy was not injured the police said.

Dear Abby Fiancee doesn't want to 'endure' marriage

DEAR ABBY: I have been engaged to a very fine widower for nearly a year. He is 68 and I am a few years younger. Two weeks before our wedding date, he started having a little trouble, so he went to his doctor. The doctor found a tumor and ordered him to the hospital for an operation immediately. The tumor was cancerous, and in the last four months, my friend has had two more operations. He seems somewhat better now, and expects me to go ahead with our wedding plans. Do you think he would feel hurt if I were to give him the ring back? I don't think I am up to going thru all the things I may have to endure in the future. What would you do? Please hurry your reply.

WONDERING: I loved the man, I would marry him at once and give him as much happiness as the good Lord allowed us. But obviously that didn't occur to you, so return the ring. Of course he would feel "hurt," but feeling as you do, it would be better than "going thru all you may have to endure" with resentment — instead of love.

DEAR ABBY: I am a pastor's wife and I have a question which I wish you would answer as a favor to me and to all other wives of pastors who are puzzled by this problem:

Why don't people invite the pastor and his wife to the wedding and to the wedding rehearsal affair if they really want them? More often than not, they just "assume" that the pastor and his wife will attend the wedding and the rehearsal party. After the wedding rehearsal, when my husband is on his way out the door, they will run after him and say, "You are staying, aren't you?" Or, "Where is your wife? Isn't she coming?"

In order not to embarrass them, my husband usually says, "My wife is tied up." (He should say, "My wife isn't coming because she wasn't invited.")

Why, Abby, shouldn't clergymen and their wives receive invitations like everyone else if they are wanted?

PASTOR'S WIFE: DEAR WIFE: Many hesitate to send an official invitation to the clergyman and his wife because they fear it might be construed as a hint for a gift. However, if the pastor and his wife are wanted, they should receive a formal invitation, an informally written note, or a telephone call.

DEAR ABBY: Several weeks ago I reported on a fellow employee. An investigation was made and this person was fired. I honestly don't know why I did it because the girl means a great deal to me and I know she trusts me.

She has been told by several people that I was responsible for her being discharged, but she refuses to believe it.

I feel so guilty now I avoid her at every opportunity. I find it hard to live with myself these days. Should I tell her and ask for forgiveness?

INFORMER: DEAR INFORMER: Yes.

Santa Barbarans still anti-oil

When it comes to pollution, Santa Barbarans are a skeptical lot, neither forgiving nor forgetting, judging from the results of a recent attitude survey.

A majority of the 725 citizens interviewed in the downtown area and suburbs in November expressed a lack of confidence in all levels of government in relation to control of pollution.

Though the poll was conducted nearly two years after the big oil spill off the coast of Santa Barbara, 72 per cent of those queried still wanted oil operations out of the Santa Barbara Channel. Of this group, 47 per cent wanted oil out immediately and 25 per cent after the leak near Platform A is plugged. Of the remaining 28 per cent, 18 per cent thought such operations should be allowed to continue and 10 per cent had no opinion.

The survey was made by 262 students at the University of California at Santa Barbara (UCSB) who are enrolled in a geography course dealing with problems of environmental pollution and available techniques for solving them. The professor, Dr. Norman Sanders, states that he was as interested in getting his students into the community to meet John-Q-Citizen as he was with sampling opinions.

The poll showed that a majority of those interviewed did not believe that "an adequate job in fighting pollution during the past year" had been carried out at any governmental level.

Seventy per cent thought that U.S. Congressmen and Gov. Ronald Reagan had done an inadequate job; 68 per cent thought likewise of President Richard Nixon's efforts; 59 per cent, Santa Barbara County Supervisors; 57 per cent, Santa Barbara City Councilmen; and 65 per cent, the State Legislators.

The poll also showed that a majority of those interviewed:

--Would be willing to pay more in taxes and costs for manufactured goods in order to clean up the environment;

--Believed that the oil industry is more concerned with giving the impression that it is trying to operate without pollution in the Channel than it is with actually eliminating such pollution.

Former Secretary of the Interior Walter J. Hickel, who at the time of the poll was still in office, was judged by 42 per cent of those sampled to be on the side of the oil industry.

Twenty-one per cent placed him under the banner of pollution control, and 37 per cent just weren't sure at all.

Conservation district confab set

Twenty-five years of resource conservation sponsored by California's Soil Conservation Districts has added nearly 25 billion dollars to California's economy the past 25 years.

These facts, along with other accomplishments, will be highlighted at the annual convention of the California Association of Soil Conservation Districts at Santa Cruz, January 10-13, according to Charles Misuraca, president of the association. The meeting will be held at Santa Cruz Holiday Inn Convention Center. Over 400 district directors are expected to attend.

Local directors attending will be William Laranjo and Darrell Schuyler of the Lompoc SCD Board.

Laranjo is President of the Area VI Association of Soil Conservation Districts which covers the Districts in Western San Luis Obispo, Santa Barbara, Ventura, Los Angeles, and Eastern Kern Counties. J. M. (Max) Wilson, Charter member of the Lompoc SCD and a member of the State Soil Conservation Commission, hopes to attend at least a portion of the meeting.

The California Association of Soil Conservation Districts (CASCD) are celebrating their Silver Anniversary in observance of 25 years since the association was organized in 1945.

On The Right by William Buckley Mau Mauing

Those of you who are not aware of Tom Wolfe should—really—do your best to acquaint yourselves with him. For one thing, he is probably the most skillful writer in America. I mean by that he can do more things with words than anyone else: a greater variety of things. He is like the pianist, Henry Scott, who can play the Flight of the Bumblebee while wearing mittens. That is of course stunt-stuff, but Wolfe, the virtuoso, does not depend alone on his flashy cadenzas. He can do anything. Meanwhile he is a leading figure in the New Journalism, which weds the craft of the novelist to the obligations of the journalist. And on top of that, he has written a very very controversial book, for which he has been publicly excommunicated from the company of the orthodox by the bishops who preside over the New York Review of Books.

Mr. Wolfe was born in Richmond, Virginia, in 1931, and took his B.A. at Washington and Lee University. His principal enthusiasm at college was baseball, in which he hoped to become a professional. He failed and, dropping out, went to Yale, taking there a doctorate degree in American Studies. He worked briefly as a copyboy for the New York Daily News, principally because an editor there desired the experience of having a Ph.D. bring him his Coca-Colas. Then the Washington Post, then the Herald Tribune, and now he is an editor of New York Magazine. His articles, published there and in Esquire, are regularly compiled into books with crazy titles. The first was the Kandy-Kolored Tangerine-Flake Streamline Baby; then there was the Pump House Gang, and The Electric Kool-Aid Acid Test, and, now, Radical Chic and Mau Mauing the Flak Catchers, the first part of which is about the famous party that Leonard Bernstein threw to raise money for the Black Panthers who had been indicted for conspiring to bomb a few department stores, presumably racist department stores, in New York City during Eastertide.

Well sir, what happened shouldn't happen to an honest hangman, let alone an artist. What Mr. Wolfe did in his book was MAKE FUN of Bernstein et al, and if you have never been told, you MUST NOT MAKE FUN of Bernstein et al when what hangs in the balance is Bernstein's moral prestige plus the integrity of Black Protest, learn the lesson now. Tom Wolfe, although thoroughly apolitical, focused on the paradoxes involved in the spilling of Black Rage over the extra-porous sensibilities of an antimacassar liberal, who has been trained to salivate over the plight of any Negro even one whose cause is the absolute right of Black Panthers to commit revolution, bomb department buildings, and rage against the Jews while they are at it.

Anyway...Tom Wolfe is an unfortunate victim of ideological ire. His wit attracts the witless among the critics. For instance? Well, here is Wolfe, talking about how some of the black militants in San Francisco succeeded in terrorizing Poverty Program types into giving them money, namely by Frightening Them...There was one genius in the art of confrontation who had mau mauing down to what you could term a laboratory science. He had it figured out so he didn't even have to bring his boys downtown in person. He would just show up with a crocus sack full of revolvers, ice picks, fish knives, switchblades, hatchets, blackjacks, gravity knives, straight razors, hand grenades, blow guns, bazookas, Molotov cocktails, tank rippers, unbelievable stuff, and he'd dump it all out on somebody's shiny walnut conference table. He'd say, "These are some of the things I took off my boys last night..."

This is the kind of thing that is met (by Mr. Jason Epstein of the New York Review of Books) with such embarrassing moral pith-and-moment phrases as that Mr. Wolfe is "cruel and shallow," that his "sin is a lack of compassion," that his is an "intellectual weakness' because he "finds himself beyond his depth, frailties that commonly accompany moments of great personal or public stress," and so on and so forth; Cotton Mather reviewing Peter Pan.

Tom Wolfe will survive the humorless of this world—that or else the world will not, should not, survive. If he feels down, after such reviews as Mr. Epstein's, he can go back and re-read Karl Shapiro's that appeared in Book World after his previous book: "Let us...pay homage to

Tom Wolfe right off the bat. He has given us the finest mug shots of the soi-disant revolutionaries we shall see in a long time. He has pinned their little wriggling personae to the bulletin board for all to gaze upon. He has performed necessary acts of vilification with a superb aristocratic cool. He is a master of intonation and an extrapolator who can put to shame the regnant sociologists of guilt and hedonism...Tom Wolfe is more than brilliant...Tom Wolfe is a goddam joy... Read his book, and see if you don't agree.

Decision on on harbor delayed

A decision on a proposed Cojo Bay Harbor has been put off at least a year for more study by the State Commission on Navigation and Ocean Development.

The proposed anchorage is a cove east of Point Concepcion in the Santa Barbara Channel.

The postponement was decided at a meeting in San Diego.

At a public hearing in October, many Santa Barbara County residents and others protested that the harbor was unnecessary and that if granted, would probably materialize into another development along the state's coastline. Protesters stated that the coastline is already suffering from the development of jetties, subdivisions, marinas and other industrial plants.

Others stated that the proposed seawall would not protect small craft from northwest winds.

Commission staff and members wish to further study whether there is sufficient boat traffic in the area to warrant a refuge harbor. The commission is expected to use $30,000 or an available $50,000 for further studies.

Grant defends methods

Third District Supervisor Daniel G. Grant today defended his method of getting County Planning Commission nominees from Goleta Valley.

Grant said he felt it was proper to get such a nomination — which he will follow — from the Goleta Valley Chamber of Commerce, even though some people strongly feel other valley groups should have some say about filling such a sensitive post.

Grant has revealed he will follow the dictates of the chamber directors who are urging reappointment of Andrew Sexton to the commission Jan. 4.

The Third District supervisor, who three weeks ago had informed Sexton he would be replaced on the grounds of criticism said to be emanating at that time from chamber membership and other sources, now has shown he will reappoint Sexton, in view of chamber president Michael Morisoli's declaration of support.

Grant explains that he feels the valley chamber of commerce has membership which represents a "good cross-section" of the valley's burgeoning population. He points to members being associated with citizen organizations, service clubs, business and industry.

One strong citizens' association in the valley reportedly had sought to have Grant listen to ideas they and other homeowner groups have in the valley before making a selection.

With the LARGEST Variety of Pizza in Lompoc

The Kremlin has not had an easy time of it with the dominion established over Eastern Europe after World War II. Poland's riots are only the latest in a series of upheavals that have challenged the Soviets in every country except Bulgaria. It started with Yugoslavia's Tito, who broke with Stalin in 1948. The 1953 uprising of East German workers was crushed by Soviet tanks. Both Poland and Hungary erupted in 1956. Polish riots, centered in Poznan, were curbed with the return to power of Wladyslaw Gomulka, loser in the latest disorders. Hungary went on to open rebellion and bloody suppression. Hard-line Stalinist and Peking-ally Albania broke with Moscow in 1961. Runaway liberalization brought Soviet troops into Czechoslovakia in 1968. Although avoiding an open break, Romania's nationalist-minded leaders have followed independent foreign and trade policies since the mid-1960s.

James Williams

Memorial services will be held Monday at 2 p.m. in San Luis Obispo for James Williams, 53, first agricultural instructor in Lompoc High School, who was killed in an automobile accident Friday, Dec. 18, near Thousand Oaks, Calif.

The services will be held at Zion Lutheran Church, Santa Rosa Street and Foothill Boulevard.

Mr. Williams started the agricultural program in Lompoc High School here in 1949. He was head of the department four years until he moved to San Luis Obispo where he was director of the agricultural program at San Luis Obispo High School for 15 years. This year he became principal of Laguna Junior High School, a new school, in San Luis Obispo.

Graveside services were held last Tuesday at Los Osos Memorial Park.

The Williams family was on a trip to Iowa when the accident occurred. Mrs. Williams was driving when another car pulled in front of her and she lost control of her vehicle. In addition to his widow, five children survive.

Contributions may be made to the James Williams Memorial Fund for a special project planned by Mr. Williams.

Baby Wichern

Graveside services will be held Monday for Baby Wichern who was born Dec. 23 and died the same day at Lompoc District Hospital.

The baby is survived by parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Wichern, 1454 Calle Lindero, Mission Hills. Rev. Donal Mulcahy of Queen of Angels Catholic church will officiate at 11 a.m. at Evergreen Cemetery.

McPeck Family Mortuary is in charge of arrangements.

Old McNamara mine field claimed lives of six GIs

SAIGON (UPI) — The old mine field in which six American soldiers were killed and two wounded Dec. 12 was a part of the 1967 "McNamara's Wall" project, informed sources said Saturday.

Former Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara proposed that a mine field, barbed wire entanglements and electronic sensing devices be installed along the entire 46-mile south edge of the demilitarized zone (DMZ) separating North and South Vietnam to halt infiltration from the North.

The project was abandoned as unfeasible after a few miles of the "death strip" was completed.

Military sources said the victims were members of Alpha Company of the 161st Infantry of the 1st Brigade of the 5th Mechanized Infantry Division. The eight men had set out on a patrol along the DMZ, just beyond Fire Support Base Alpha Four, closest U.S. outpost to the border.

The mines, installed by the 3rd Marine division in 1967, are laid in belts, separated by barbed wire entanglements.

The patrol had been scheduled to walk down a road toward the DMZ until it passed the final barbed wire concertina, and then turn off the road. But the men apparently became confused in the darkness and turned off midway through the mine field, military sources said.

They had walked several hundred yards through the mine field before one of the members set off one of the mines, suffering an arm wound, military sources said.

The members of the patrol were still unaware that they were in a mine field and reported back by radio that a man had been wounded by a Communist booby trap. They gave their position as a point well north of the mine field, military sources said.

A dense fog was moving into the area and it was impossible to locate the patrol with a helicopter ambulance. The patrol was asked to walk back to the road, where they could be found, military sources said.

The men had almost reached the road when someone stepped on a mine. The blast blew the two men assisting the wounded man forward but their bodies protected the patrol leader, who was walking at the head of the column.

The blast also blew the two men walking behind the wounded man backward and their bodies set off at least two more mines when they fell, military sources said.

The explosion destroyed the patrol's only radio, the sources said. However, men manning the bunkers at Alpha Four a few hundred meters away reported hearing screams and signal shots from within the mine field. A patrol was sent down the road to investigate, found the men and ordered them to remain where they were until they could be pulled out.

Daily Record

MEETING — The Lompoc Planning Commission will meet Monday at 7:30 p.m. in City Council Chambers. Two items are on the agenda: a report by zoning committee on an ordinance relating to property nuisances and a review of rules of procedure for conduct of Planning Commission meetings.

NO VISTAS — Due to the holiday season Vistas supplement to the Lompoc Record will not be published today. Vistas will resume publication Saturday, Jan. 2.

THEFT — Rusty Balaam, 1309 W. Nectarine, reported to the Lompoc police that someone stole a half gallon of liquor from the U-Save Liquor Store — on Christmas Eve.

ARREST — Lompoc police reported the arrest Friday of Robert Steven Henderson, 19, 1409 W. Chestnut, on charges of disturbing the peace, being under the influence of narcotics and possession of narcotics paraphernalia.

A medical evacuation helicopter made an attempt to remove them but was unsuccessful and abandoned the try because of the ground level fog, military sources said.

At that point a senior officer commandeered the helicopter and the commander of an Air Cavalry detachment, a veteran pilot known for his skill and cool head, took the controls.

General Plan unit proposes nominees

The Citizens for the General Plan asked Supervisor Dan Grant today to consider a list of several candidates for the vacancy on the Planning Commission created by the resignation of Eugene Sexton.

"Every citizen group should have a voice in the selection of an appointee to the Planning Commission," the citizens' committee told Grant.

The committee "took exception" to Supervisor Grant's decision to delegate to the Goleta Chamber of Commerce the privilege of selecting a planning commissioner for the Third District. The Goleta Chamber this week gave Sexton the nod for another term.

"The voters who overwhelmingly defeated the ill-advised El Capitan subdivision proposal are entitled to expect new representation of the Planning Commission. The defeat of El Capitan constituted a repudiation of Mr. Sexton's voting pattern on the Commission," the committee said.

The Citizens for the General Plan asserted that Supervisor Grant had assured them and other citizens groups that he would accept Sexton's resignation.

The committee reminded Grant that "The Goleta Chamber of Commerce is not the only civic association with a stake in the future of the 3rd District. It represents, in fact, a rather narrow group of interests. Many other organizations and individuals must be looked to for guidance in selecting a planning commissioner."

"Vital questions on the nature of zoning and planning in our county will be determined in the next few months. A much stronger posture in support of the General Plan is essential to withstand environmental downgrading along the coast and in our valleys."

The affiliation of county citizen groups that spearheaded the successful El Capitan referendum said that arrangements are being made to discuss the commission vacancy with Grant.

Fellowship of People New Paths Augur Well for Religion

"A growing number of people believe that religion is losing its influence on American life, according to the most recent data available from the American Institute of Public Opinion, Princeton, N.J." This statement comes from the "Yearbook of American Churches," published annually since 1914 and the most authoritative watchdog on church statistics.

The book carries pages of reports on finance, membership, personnel and programs of most of the religious groups in the land. This material is not generally read by those beyond denominational executives, church officials and prying sociologists. Yet some fascinating trends can be studied and the direction of organized religion rather carefully charted.

On this whole discussion of "religious influence," the yearbook adds these thoughts.

"Twelve years ago, in 1957, only 14 per cent of all persons interviewed thought religion was losing ground in U.S. society. In 1968 (the year of most complete statistics) the figure was 67 per cent."

That is quite a turn around on anybody's chart and yearbook editors suggest four reasons unearthed in the public opinion samplings:

- Young people are losing interest in formal religion; other influences are becoming more meaningful.
- Growing crime, immorality and violence.
- Materialistic distractions.
- The Church is not playing its proper role. (Some say it is not keeping up with the times, but as many more say it is too involved in social and political issues.)

Some additional observations made by those sampled: Young people from 19-21 were most pessimistic about the church scene. Church members shared the above four points as much as nonmembers. Opinion was universal.

The trends described point to serious trouble for the institutional church which desperately needs young people to carry on the work and traditions of the Faith. But we shall make a colossal error in judgment here if we think that religious influence of institutions is the same as religious interest and pursuit of people. They may be going in different directions; the results may be manifest in unusual and exciting ways as tradition yields to innovation and inspiration.

Take the building thing. For the last five years new church construction has hit around $1 billion a year. That kind of money does not come from the bishop's purse or the board of deacon's treasury. It comes from the people who ride the bus to work, harvest the wheat and assemble the washing machines. Many thousands of families, when forced to decide between the building of a home or the construction of a cathedral, will in good sense look after the family. The crush of taxes, inflation and health care have finally forced a decision that means charity starts at home.

On the other hand, you have a whole new breed of clergy that wants to build a fellowship of people, with or without bell tower. They know that bricks and stained glass and air-conditioned chapels are not what finally enlarges the Faith or extends the mission of Christ in the world. As this leadership takes hold across the country, young people will respond in new ways but will hardly pour their energy into old mortgages or new religious pentagons.

A good case can be made for a substantial increase in religious influence in the whole world. What we are seeing is not a decline in religion but a diffusion and this will bring hope and joy to millions of people who had never before been touched by the worn, tired programs of organized churches.

The ancient church of St. Mary, Aldermanbury, built in London at the turn of the 12th century, has been reconstructed on the Westminster College campus in Fulton, Mo., as a center point of the Winston Churchill Memorial and Library. Rebuilt by Sir Christopher Wren after the Great Fire of 1666, the structure was damaged in a World War I Zeppelin raid and gutted, right, by a Nazi incendiary bomb in 1940. The ruins were dismantled in 1965 and shipped to Missouri, where the restored church, left, will house a museum and library in its lower level.

Scientists prepare responsive reading

"Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men."

These cherished words from the account in Luke's Gospel of the birth of Christ Jesus are a part of the Responsive Reading to be voiced by the congregation at Christian Science services Sunday.

"Christ's Christianity is the chain of scientific being reappearing in all ages, maintaining its obvious correspondence with the Scriptures and uniting all periods in the design of God," reads one of the citations in the Lesson-Sermon on "Christian Science" from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy.

Services at First Church of Christ, Scientist, 210 S. H St. are held at 11:00 a.m. All are welcome. Sunday School for those up to 20 years begins at 9:15 a.m.

Presbyterian sermon topic is announced

The worship service at the First Presbyterian Church tomorrow morning is scheduled for 9:30 a.m. The pastor, Rev. Kenneth R. Boyd, will speak on the theme, "God's Claim On Your Life." Church School is also at the 9:30 hour. Nursery care is provided for smallest children during the service.

The Senior High youth fellowship is preparing for their winter snow retreat. Thirty young people and their advisers will join with youth from the Cambria Presbyterian Church January 1, 2, and 3 at Sugar Pine Conference Grounds near Yosemite. Rev. Michael Jarvis, pastor of the Cambria congregation, will be the principal speaker for the conference.

St. Mary's schedules Communion

Trial Liturgy celebrations of Holy Communion will be held at St. Mary's Episcopal Church at 8 and 10 a.m. Sunday. Church School for those under first grade will be held. Other youngsters attend church with their families.

Tuesday Holy Communion and the Laying on of Hands will be administered at 7:30 p.m.

A midnight celebration will be held New Year's Eve, as the first act of welcoming in the new year. After Church a breakfast will be held at the Pickering home. Those planning to attend are asked to RSVP at the church office, 6-2311, 9 a.m. noon Monday through Thursday or the Pickering, 3-4305.

The Church School will present a Christmas - Epiphany Pageant on Sunday, January 3 at 7 p.m. A rehearsal will be held this Tuesday at 1:30 p.m.

So. Baptists place emphasis on youth

"The One Who Will Come Again" is title of the Sunday morning sermon at the First Southern Baptist Church. Dr. W. B. Timberlake is the pastor. The choir will present the hymn anthem, "Jesus Is Coming Again."

Sunday evening, at 7:00, the emphasis will be on young people. The youth choir will sing, "Here Is My Life" and young people will participate in the service through the reading of scripture, testimonies, and prayer. The pastor's sermon is entitled "The Vocabulary of Young People." Special recognition will be given to young people of the church who are enrolled in college, both those who are home for Christmas, and those who commute from their homes.

Monday night young people from the church will meet with young people of 15 churches of the Pacific Southern Baptist Association in a skate party at Santa Maria, sponsored by the youth department.

Activities for the coming week include a watch-night party on New Year's eve.

Bethany Lutherans observe special day

This Sunday, Bethany Lutheran will observe St. John, Apostle and Evangelist Day, since the 27th, the day set aside by the church for this day, falls on a Sunday this year. The pastor's sermon will be entitled, "The Disciple Whom Jesus Loved." The order of service for the 8:15 a.m. service will be the order of "Prayer and Preaching." The order for the 10:45 a.m. service will be the order for Holy Communion. Sunday School and Bible Study will be at 9:30 a.m.

Thursday, Dec. 31st, at 7:30 p.m. will be the New Year's Eve Holy Communion. New Year's Eve is the vespers of the Name and Circumcision of Jesus and this is what will be recalled particularly in this service, according to the pastor.

What Do We Believe asks Calvary Pastor

Pastor Wallis A. Turner will continue his series this Sunday night at 6:00 on the subject "What Do We Believe." This is the fifth in a series of sermons on essential beliefs of the Christian faith. His topic this Sunday night is "What I Believe about The Holy Spirit." At each service printed subject sketches are available so the congregation can follow the general subjects and scripture references used in the sermon series. There will be 16 subjects in all on successive Sunday nights.

Pastor Turner will speak in the morning service at 11:00 on the subject "Peace, and How to Get There." Other ministries of the church will include Sunday School at 9:45 a.m., and training hour at 7:15 p.m. In the training hour, in addition to youth groups for all ages, there are several adult classes, including one "sermon feedback" session with the pastor, in which questions concerning the evening sermon are welcome.

During the past week, Junior High, High School and College (Comilubus) groups have gone carolling at different times throughout the community. Cub Scouts and Girls' Missionary Guild groups also were scheduled for carolling during Christmas week.

Gossett glad 49ers worked out on Coast

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The San Francisco 49ers are journeying to the old climes of Minnesota at the last possible minute and place-kicker Bruce Gossett applauds the action.

Gossett was with the Los Angeles Rams when they played Minnesota in last year's comparable playoff. Coach George Allen brought his team to the Midwest a week early in hopes the Rams would get used to the winter.

"We didn't have a decent practice all week," Gossett recalled. "Instead of working out in nice Southern California weather, we were stuck practicing in the snow. At times we even found ourselves in a blizzard."

"And do you know where the Vikings were working out while we were in the snow? In a field house, that's where." Minnesota won the game, 23-20. The 49ers play the Vikings with temperatures predicted in the 20s.

Gossett, who came to San Francisco in a trade for cornerback Kermit Alexander, broke a team record this year by kicking 21 field goals. Last season the 49ers had only eight field goals.

Gossett said he had "probably my best year kicking, except for that field goal I missed against Atlanta."

He missed a 19-yard attempt in the final seconds at Atlanta Oct. 4 to give the Falcons the 21-20 win.

"I'm really relieved we won our division," he said. "If we would have lost it by a game, that kick would really have haunted me."

No scarcity of quarterbacks for pro draft

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Pro football teams needing a quarterback will have a passel of good ones to pick from in January, according to Paul Bixler, veteran director of player personnel for the Cleveland Browns.

Bixler said the top three prospects are Archie Manning of Mississippi, Heisman Trophy winner Jim Plunkett of Stanford and Lynn Dickey of Kansas State. The professional football draft will be held Jan. 28-29.

"Manning is the most elusive of the three," Bixler said. "He can run and he still has a gun for an arm."

"Plunkett and Dickey are pro - style back - up passers. They all have great arms."

Other quarterbacks who should go early in the draft are Rex Kern and Ron Maciejowski (Ohio State), Chuck Hixson (SMU), Leo Hart (Duke), Scott Hunter (Alabama), Dan Pastorini (Santa Clara) and Don Moorhead (Michigan), he added.

Bixler said he believes Maciejowski will be drafted ahead of Kern, although he played substitute most of the season for Kern. "But Kern will go higher than a lot of people think," he added.

Bixler said he believes Maciejowski will be drafted ahead of Kern, although he played substitute most of the season for Kern. "But Kern will go higher than a lot of people think," he added.

Bixler said there are also "some fine runners" available, including John Brockington and Leo Hayden of Ohio State, Steve Worster of Texas and fullback Jim Braxton of West Virginia. Tight end Jan White of Ohio State should "go very early" because he can play either wide receiver or tight end, he said.

Other positions were not so well represented on college teams this year, he believes.

"There's a scarcity of linemen, offensive and defensive," he said, adding linebackers "are only fair this year."

Bixler said Ohio State's Jack Tatum will be the first defensive player drafted, but added, "I think he'll be converted to an offensive back."

He said OSU middle guard Jim Stillwagon, named All-America, "will go pretty early" despite his size of 6 feet and 225 pounds.

Ralph Simpson: Millionaire from Ghetto

IRA BERKOW

By IRA BERKOW
NEA Sports Editor

NEW YORK—(NEA)—One of Ralph Simpson's first official acts upon becoming a 20-year-old millionaire last September was to buy himself a pink El Dorado. Now, the car embarrasses him a bit.

Simpson, who quit Michigan State as a sophomore to sign a contract with Denver of the American Basketball Association, was aware that the purchase of the car showed him to be both an instant success and an instant cliché.

The stale joke in black groups as well as white is that as soon as a black cat can afford it—or perhaps especially when he can't afford it—he will buy a flaming pink Cadillac replete with trimmings.

"At first I wanted a Mark III," said Simpson, "then a friend said he could get me a $2,800 discount on the El Dorado. I saw it in the show window and it attracted me. The salesman said it was the last one they had and didn't know when they'd get another because of the General Motors strike."

"I thought I owed it to myself to buy it. I had worked hard and now my work was finally payin' off. Now, well, I'll look at the car and I don't even like it. I mean, I don't like what it represents."

The GM strike had a lot to do with the feeling, Simpson is from Detroit. His father worked in a GM factory and that's where the money for the bread he ate as a ghetto kid came from.

Now he sat on a bed in a small hotel room here, having turned low the television set which still flickered a Dick Powell movie. Simpson possesses a long 6-5 frame that, this afternoon, ended with spiffy alligator loafers and began with a Big Apple cap flopping over his left ear.

"When I first heard about the strike I was in Denver—livin' high, goin' places, doin' things, havin' fun. My first feeling about the strike? None. People with money tend to lose feelin' for other people."

"Then I went home to Detroit. I saw people out of work. They hardly had enough money to live. But I still was living the good life. Then a couple days later my mother calls and she's got this sad, sad voice and she tells me things are so bad with her friends and could I loan them some money."

"Then I really started looking at my car. Don't get me wrong, I still like it. But sooner or later I'm going to get me a smaller car."

Simpson, like his Denver teammate and Detroit neighbor, Spencer Haywood, quit college to join the ABA, amid legal screams by the National Basketball Association.

When Haywood quit, he said that he was being used as a pawn by Detroit University to fill up the seats, so why not make a million by legalizing his pro status. Simpson, however, said he was content at Michigan State, but his father, who has supported the family of eight children though he hasn't lived with them for about 10 years, had had a heart attack. Simpson felt it was either work for him or gradual starvation for his family.

Besides his car, he got a high-rent bachelor apartment in Denver and splurged on natty wide brim hats, wide-lapel suits, $60 alligator shoes. And his former high school coach, Will Robinson, whom Simpson says he respects like a father, said that Ralph didn't know the value of money.

Simpson was hurt by the charge, but says it ain't so. Half his salary he puts in a savings account, and half of that he sends home and the other quarter he sticks in his pocket. He has a respected lawyer and accountant look after his affairs.

Simpson says his big thrill was not so much getting the money, for this is still inconceivable to him, but just playing in the pros. Not long ago he played basketball outdoors in the snow with gloves on, or walked three miles to a gym in zero weather, or stood outside Cobo Hall and watched with awe as Ray Scott and John Barnhill and Wayne Hightower, Pistons then but ABA players now, came into the street after a game. The next day in a school yard he'd be dribbling and he'd say, "I'm Ray Scott, watch out!"

Simpson now is averaging almost 20 points a game and is no longer awestruck. "I feel like a pro," he said. But education is still an important matter and he plans to get his degree after summer-school sessions at Michigan State. He said he will never be sorry for the decision to quit school. He lives in a building with a security gate, something he never experienced in the ghetto. And he helped his family refurbish and pay off their house which is now in a middle-class neighborhood.

"Guess you can say we livin' like people," said Simpson.

JOE FRAZIER, formal heavyweight boxing champion, aspires to reach the top as a singer, too. He recently completed an engagement in a Catskills hotel. He is vocalist for the group called, "Joe Frazier and the Knockouts."

Steelers reached peak early; QB Bradshaw a flop

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — By missing out on the National Football League playoffs, the Pittsburgh Steelers kept a perfect 38-year record intact.

No team has gone so long doing so little in the NFL. Even the San Francisco 49ers finally broke through this season after 20 futile years.

The Steelers extended their record with unaccustomed style and grace. They won five games, compared to last year's one, and raised some hope among their fans that maybe this all-time loser has a future.

Putting the Steelers' picture in perspective, however, one must remember the Cincinnati Bengals, created when the Steelers were 35 years old, were champions of the division that included Pittsburgh.

Won With Reserve

The Bengals won with a reserve quarterback; their starter, Greg Cook, was injured. The Steelers lost with two quarterbacks, both of whom came into the league amid considerable fanfare the last two years, then promptly bombed.

Outwardly, coach Chuck Noll showed little concern, repeatedly pointing out that 5-9 was a considerable improvement over 1-13, that he was rebuilding a moribund team with youth. Young players, however, are supposed to improve to help a team, and the Steelers' young players did not improve.

Instead, Pittsburgh hit its peak early and went downhill steadily.

After winning four straight exhibition games and starting the league season 4-4, the Steelers dropped five of their final six games, including the last three to three of the weakest teams in the National Conference — Green Bay, Atlanta and Philadelphia.

The young players did not make the progress Noll had expected of them. At the end, even he admitted he might have to do some reevaluating.

Joe Greene, a rookie sensation at defensive tackle a year ago, wasn't nearly as effective even though he was voted to the American Conference all-star team. The other teams learned how to handle Greene, and the Steelers were unable to adapt.

It was the same way at the other positions, particularly quarterback, where the Steelers never did get settled.

Terry Hanratty suffered too many interceptions last year, so this season he relied more on the ground game when he played. But throwing less, he completed even less — less than 40 per cent of his attempts — and in reducing interceptions, he also stymied the offense.

But Terry Bradshaw was the biggest bust of all.

Bradshaw had more than 10 per cent of his passes intercepted. Allowed to call his own plays, he often abandoned a strong running game to pass on virtually every play, even in close games.

Certainly, there remains the old cliché that it takes five years to develop a pro quarterback, but the Steelers have been waiting five years every season since they started. And at the end of the season, the future is not much brighter than it was at the beginning.

Frazier's 'Cause'--- Family and Pride

By IRA BERKOW
NEA Sports Editor

NEW YORK—(NEA)—With Joe Frazier's gentleman chauffeur-valet at the wheel, the deep-gold, air-conditioned, custom Cadillac Coup de Ville with stereo, sun roof and telephone swept off the highway. The afternoon was crisp and clear. Frazier gazed out the window at a thickly settled, slate-gray cemetery.

"That's the Queens cemetery," said a passenger in the back.

"Bet some kings is buried there, too," said Frazier, laughing hoarsely.

They were on the way to Brooklyn to get a new telephone system hooked up in the car, one of four Joe owns. The new telephone would cost $2,188. The one he had allowed him to make phone calls only from his home area, Philadelphia. This one, he said, would let him make calls from anywhere in the whole world.

It would give him something to do before he goes into training full time for his heavyweight championship fight against Muhammad Ali, in late February or early March, in New York City or Houston. The contract has not been signed, but there will be a fight. For it is a matter of much money and pride to both.

The fight is with Frazier wherever he goes. Even when he came home after watching Ali knock out Oscar Bonavena in the 15th round. Frazier's 10-year-old son, Marvis, greeted him at the door.

"He wanted to know how come Cassius Clay knocked out Bonavena and I didn't," said Frazier. No smile creased his nose-flattened face.

"I said, 'Can't knock everybody out, son.'"

"He said, 'Uh, but Clay he knocked him down and you didn't.'"

"I didn't say nothin' after that."

Frazier's attention was diverted because the telephone company was in sight. Driver Bobby Kears pulled up. Inside, a slim red-haired man solicitously explained how to use the complicated telephone to Frazier and Kears.

"You'll get used to it," said the red-haired man.

"For a few thousand dollars, I'd better get used to it," said Frazier.

"Right now," said the man, "it's as foreign to you as prize fighting would be to me."

"If you had to fight to eat," said Frazier, "you'd learn how fast." This got a big laugh.

Outside again, Frazier observed his reflection in his car window and threw a few fast combinations into the December chill.

"That's to keep sharp," he said, in the ride back to Manhattan. "For the reflex."

The talk turned to Ali again.

"People say he got a cause and I don't," said Frazier. "But what's the cause? What's it mean to be a black champion? What's it ever meant? What's it mean for Jack Johnson to be champ? Or Joe Louis? Do it help the black folks? I don't need a cause to fight because I fight for my family, for myself, for my pride."

"But I ain't no Uncle Tom and I ain't no black white hope. I do what little I can. They're tryin' to build a chemical factory in the town I was raised in. In Beaufort, South Carolina. People starvin' down there, and this'd give maybe four thousand, five thousand jobs. But the whites don't want it. They say pollution. Pollution wouldn't be able to stay, man, not in the South, because there's too much space."

"I'm goin' to talk with one of the factory people who want to build it, and maybe we can get it in."

"But look, man, I'm a fighter, that's all. Man get hit on the button, he gotta go. Cause? My cause is me."

Carter admires Brown

By MILTON RICHMAN

NEW YORK (UPI) — Phil Bengtson is gone and Bill Austin most likely is next.

A couple of others are sure to follow because even an old wide receiver like Percy Shelly could tell the score when he said "If winter comes can spring be far behind?"

One man is staying for sure.

Paul Brown.

He's not going anywhere unless it's too the Super Bowl next month. Such a prospect was dimmer than a 100-to-1 shot before this season began, but after losing six of their first seven Paul Brown's Cincinnati Bengals came charging back like the cavalry.

The Bengals aren't nearly as impressive a club as, say, the Minnesota Vikings or the Baltimore Colts. They have no superstars and nobody outside their immediate families can tell you the names of the players who make up the front four. But somehow the Bengals get the job done and when you talk with any of the Cincinnati players they tell you one man is primarily responsible.

Paul Brown.

Talk to Virgil Carter. He's the Bengals' quarterback and he got the regular job in the fourth game of the season with Cincinnati. Brown having picked him up from Buffalo after Greg Cook, Rookie of the Year last season, suffered a separated shoulder. Carter didn't know quite what to expect of Brown in the beginning.

"I head a great many rumors about him," says the 23-year-old quarterback whom the Chicago Bears fined $1,000 last year because he was critical of the way they handled him.

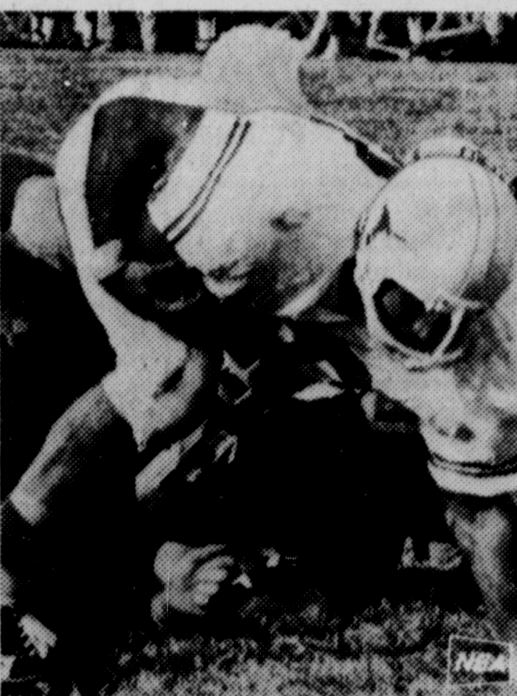

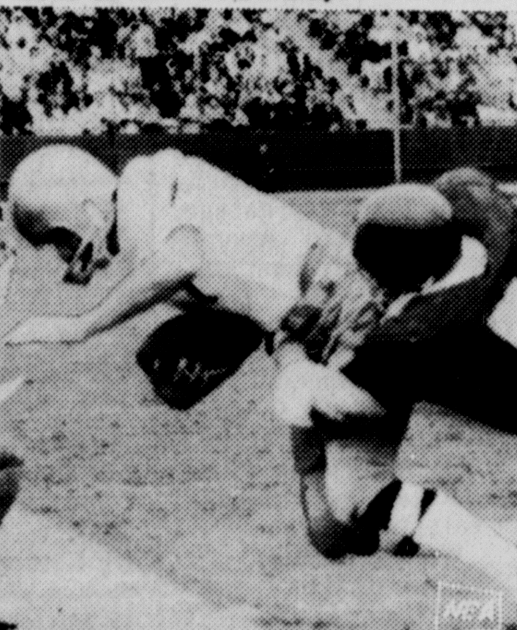

"I was awe - stricken at first and a little hesitant. The rumors you hear about him are wrong. He's really an outstanding coach, a very honest guy, a very knowledgeable guy, one who knows how to use his personnel and how to surround himself with some outstanding assistant coaches."

Paul Brown has some faults. Fewer than most people, though, when you really get down to them. One of his faults isn't immodesty. He doesn't pump himself up at the expense of his ball club. Talk to him about the reason for the success of the Bengals and you'll never hear him mention Paul Brown, only his ballplayers.

Paul Brown has this one outstanding quality all successful people have. It's called sensitivity. That quality gives him a rare insight into people and enables him to sense beforehand how they'll react.

ALTHOUGH THEY ARE the two best quarterbacks in college football, Jim Plunkett (left) of Stanford and Joe Theismann (right) of Notre Dame had their share of hard times this season. Plunkett faces Ohio State in the Rose Bowl, Theismann Texas in the Cotton Bowl on New Year's Day.

ALL-AMERICANS IN ACTION: Steve Worster, right, of Texas and Tom Gatewood, left, of Notre Dame (in white jersey). They'll be opponents in the Cotton Bowl.

Longest, Deepest Caves
The Flint Ridge cave system in Kentucky, 72.7 miles in length, is the longest in the world while the world's deepest cave is the Gouffre de la Pierre Saint-Martin on the Franco-Spanish border which has been explored to 3,872 feet.

Indians and Trees
The pecan tree may be the only native tree primitive Americans Indians planted before the white man came. The Indians also enjoyed the crops of wild acorns, walnuts, hazel and pine nuts.

LET IT BLOW, this youngster, photographed in New York City, seems prepared for any wintry blasts that may come up.

Pillars of Hercules

The Pillars of Hercules were not mountains, but the two opposite promontories, in Europe and in Africa, at the eastern end of the Strait of Gibraltar. Their modern names are Rock of Gibraltar and Jebel Musa.

SIGNS OF THE TIMES. Since time began, hand signals have been used at one time or another as a method of communication. In aviation, the din of jet engines often makes it impossible for ground personnel to confer audibly with pilots. Shown here at Hughes Air West terminal in San Francisco are some of the more than two dozen hand signals approved by the Federal Aviation Administration for use at airports.

Turn

Come forward

Stop

Pictures your family will treasure.

Shoplifters get something for nothing.

This season, several thousand Southern Californians will add sordid interest to their family albums.

Of course, it isn't too much fun for the person arrested. A criminal record, even for a juvenile offense, doesn't automatically disappear.

And this year merchants are going to make it the worst season shoplifters ever had. More and more stores are arresting everyone caught. And they're prosecuting.

So thousands of people, from every walk of life, will be taken to jail, booked, mugged, printed, and held until a decision is reached about their individual case.

The nice thing is that the law doesn't discriminate: anyone who steals is a thief. No matter how much money they have.

It may seem strange to talk about people with money being arrested. But most shoplifters can afford to pay for what they steal. That's why the stores watch everyone.

About the only thing most shoplifters have in common is that they've never been arrested before. Once arrested, they find what they get isn't worth it.

And that's why the Los Angeles Area Chamber of Commerce prepared this message. So perhaps a few people might find out, before they risk arrest.

LONDON (UPI)—The National Westminster Bank's Fleet Street branch found itself in an embarrassing position Monday—it had no money for its customers.

When the bank's doors opened for business, tellers found the employee with the key to the vault—and the money—was late for work.

When he still had not arrived 15 minutes later, the bank calmed the impatient customers by sending a messenger boy with a plastic supermarket bag next door to Barclay's Bank, a rival, where he "borrowed" $1,200.

SEWER-BOUND SNOW? Not quite. What could pass for cleaning up after a winter snowstorm actually is a daily warehousing operation at a Canadian potash mine. Unusually pure potash is recovered from more than a mile deep in the earth by a PPG-developed solution mining process near Belle Plaine, Sask.

Word's Origin

The word "music" is taken from the name for the daughters of Zeus, the Muses, who governed all beauty and harmony in the world, according to Greek mythology.

Rice at Weddings

The rice thrown at weddings was intended, by our ancestors, not only to guarantee the couple a large family but to placate any hungry evil spirits present.

As Movie Location

N. Mexico Runs Hot, Cold

By DICK KLEINER

SANTA FE, N.M.—(NEA)—In one day you can easily freeze and bake in New Mexico. The company filming "Shootout" was freezing and, an hour's plane ride away, "Scandalous John" was filming in a desert.

TRAVELING THIS WINTER?

If so, you need more protection... because there's more risk. Aetna's Travel-Rite policy covers you if you're hurt, or if you're hospitalized away from home. Get full protection before you go: call us first.

"Shootout" is Henry Hathaway's new western, with Gregory Peck riding tall in the saddle again. They were filming northwest of here, in an area called the Valle Grande beyond Los Alamos. This is the mouth of an extinct volcano and it is a huge, circular area, covered with grass and ringed with mountains.

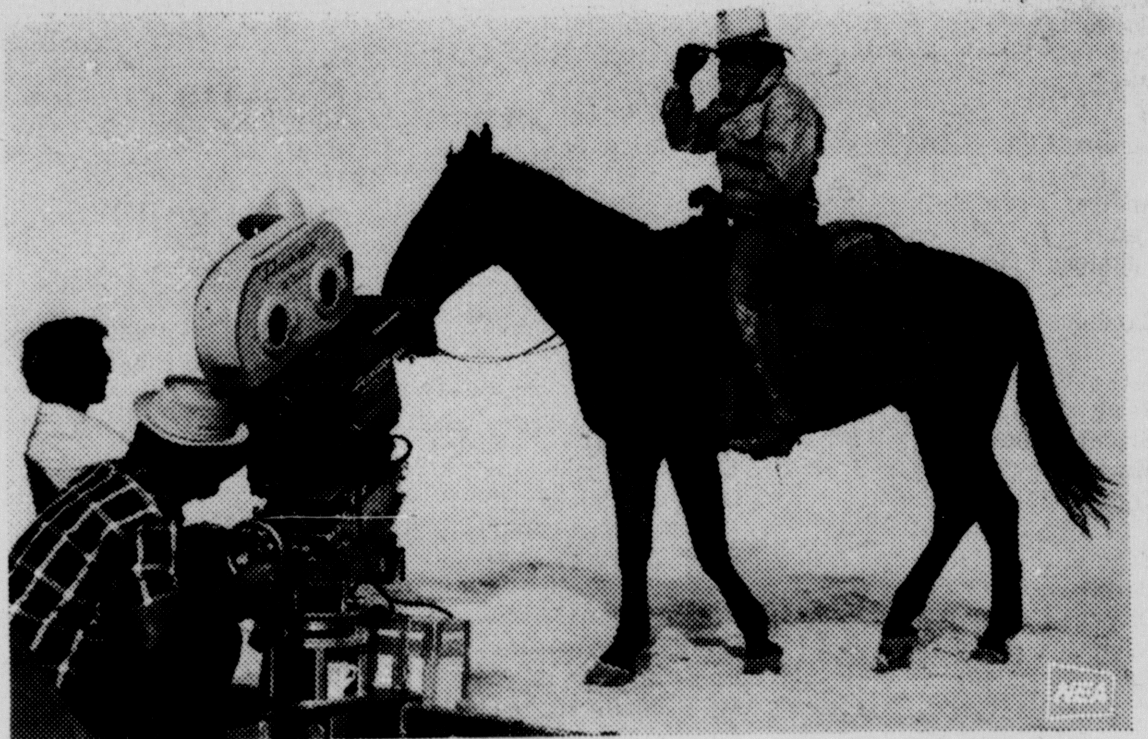

Hathaway says he was first in this state in '23, when he did a picture with Richard Dix. He has done several films here, including one African story, and says he found the terrain he needed for that one, too.

"Weather is the determining factor on a location," the director said, chewing on his unlit cigar. "We had bad weather last week (it snowed) but that was our own fault. We should have started earlier."

Peck rode up and a wrangler held his horse while he talked. They had rigged a rainstorm—water pipes behind the two shacks they had built—and were all set for the scene, but the sun had come out. They were waiting for the clouds to return.

"This ranch," Peck said, "is owned by a lady. I met her. I thought I would give her an impressive figure, so I said to her, 'You must have nearly 10,000 acres here.' And she said, 'It's nearer 100,000, Mr. Peck.'"

Peck doesn't work as much as he used to. He's very frank about why.

The New Mexico sands force actor Brian Keith to cover up.

"I get fewer scripts submitted to me all the time," he said. "I'm working less. I'm only doing about one film a year now. But I don't mind it. I doubt if I'll do a television series, but I don't have a closed mind on the subject."

The story of "Shootout" involves a little girl. Dawn Lyn, a seven-year-old charmer, plays the part. She ran over to Hathaway and Peck, clutching a little Indian doll. Hathaway said that she was a great little actress, but also a con-woman.

"The other day," he said, "she had to be thrown into some icy water. Afterwards I gave her $10 to buy a doll. She came back with that doll and said it cost $12 and that I owed her $2. So I gave her the $2. Later on, I found out that the doll only cost $6."

Down in the southern part of the state is the fantastic White Sands National Monument, a couple of hundred square miles of pure white sand. (It really is gypsum, not sand, but nobody quibbles.) Here the Disney studio is shooting "Scandalous John," with Brian Keith.

This is something new for Disney—a mature story. It's a G-rated film, or will be, of course, but it's a story with more depth and grown-up meaning than the studio has ever tackled before. It is really a modern version of "Don Quixote," with Brian Keith as an old, addled rancher with an impossible dream.

Out on the sand, the company was burying Keith and Alfonso Arau, who plays the Sancho Panza of the story. They had been caught in a sandstorm with their horses and one mangy steer.

"We have to convince the animals," said producer Bill Walsh, "that they should let us bury them in the sand. I don't think they'll let us."

We walked off into the dunes. The gypsum-sand is hard, which makes it possible to bring heavy equipment to the location.

"It's actually cool," Walsh said. "We were lying on it and it's really cool. But this place gets spooky at dusk—the sand glows."

Proper wheel balancing is accomplished by the addition of the correct amount of small lead weights to the wheel rim. There are essentially two types of balancers: The "bubble" which is the same principle as a level — your wheel is laid on a focal point and the bubble is centered in a tiny circle by adding small lead weights to the wheel. The other method perhaps is more effective in eliminating "high speed knocks" as the wheel is spun by a machine and calibrated at ever increasing speeds — Weights are added at required positions until the tire is precision balanced. Balancing should be done at least twice a year as improper balancing will deprive you of as much as 50 per cent of the life of your tire!
